Reflections

On The Lake

Who knows what a printer's Devil will turn out to be? Some have become publishers, editors, professional men, the arts—even businessmen, as in the case of Bill Coppel.

One day in 1937 Bill was overcome with excitement at the arrival in Lakeside of a learned printer, Timothy Brownhill, press and baggage. Bill, carried away at the sight of press and other equipment, volunteered to clean out the rear of a store at Maine and Sycamore.

Bill was rewarded with the office of Printer's Devil, and in due time learned the type cases, how to pull proofs, wash and oil presses, wash the ink from type and rollers—and about type lice.

Bill's opportunity was enhanced when Timothy started publishing a weekly newspaper, The Lakeside Farmer. Bill willingly took on the extra chores brought on by the newspaper. He even got his sister Lillian into the act as a reporter. However, it wasn't long before Bill made the unpardonable error—he asked for a raise.

"What?" growled Tim, "you're getting three dollars a week now." Not enough," challenged Bill. "My boy," admonished Tim, "Do you know that money is the root of all evil? Have you the least idea what inflation is?" "Sure," retorted Bill, "When dollars to doughnuts become an even bet." "Not a cent more!" That was Tim's final word that not only closed the subject, but sat on the lid. Shortly thereafter, Bill scrubbed the printer's ink off his hands and went to work in a bank.

Approximately 20 boys were present for the Pony League try-outs last Saturday, on the Lakeside Pony League ball field. Many returning players showed seasonal potential and those coming up from Little League show promise of developing into fine ball players. It has been estimated that 20 more boys will turn out for next Saturday's try-out, which will be the final one. Within the following days after the try-outs the four Lakeside Pony League teams will be chosen from this group of boys.

The managers of the League teams are: Rev. Ted Roberts, Community Church; Art Martin, Farm Bureau; Murald Farmer, Worden Colts, and Joe Sewall, Optimists.

Plans are being made for a luncheon reception to the 1956 San Diego Padres, to take place Monday, April 9, at the San Diego Hotel. The affair will be open to the public.

Manager Ralph Kiner, players of the 1956 team and Padre officials will be introduced. Program arrangements have not yet been completed.

GOLF

Golf action on the Lakeside green Sunday, March 11, found Sherman Scott and Cy Keller tying for first. Their score was 78-11-67 and 77-10-67. There also was a tie for third by Gene James and H. W. Robinson 81-13-68. Low gross of the field was H. Felure with a 74.

In their first inter-club match the Lakeside A and B teams lost to the Circle R from Escondido. The B team played there while the A team was playing the Circle R golfers here. Next week the A team will play Oceanside there while the B team plays host to the Oceanside Bees on the home green.

Thursday the women are having a Shamrock tourney. This is the Handicap plus par and where they take their last stroke they place a shamrock.

Also helping the interest in golfing to grow is Al Tilon, the Lakeside golf club pro who is holding lessons each week for the Lakeside Union School. Eighteen or more boys and girls are now taking lessons.

Kraut, Franks and Applesauce Go Together In Spicy Winter Platter

Pink applesauce spiked with cinnamon candies and horseradish forms the centerpiece of a winter-weather meal of piping hot sauerkraut and ruddy brown frankfurters. What a combination!

Nice thing about it is that all three main ingredients can be stored ready to heat on your can shelf. Then, when wintry winds and mile high snowdrifts make marketing a problem, all you need do is open your cans of applesauce, franks and sauerkraut, add the right spices, heat thoroughly and serve. Easy as A, B, C.

Perhaps your family goes for a plainer platter—just kraut and franks. In that case, serve the pink applesauce on the side and watch their delight at its out-of-the-ordinary spiciness.

Winter Special

- |                                    |                                    |
|------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 1-pound can applesauce           | 1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut            |
| 2 tablespoons red cinnamon candies | 1 teaspoon caraway seeds, optional |
| 2 tablespoons prepared horseradish | *1 can frankfurters                |
|                                    | 1 tablespoon butter or margarine   |

Combine applesauce, cinnamon candies and horseradish in saucepan. Stir well and let stand ½ hour, stirring occasionally. Heat sauerkraut, season with caraway seeds. Drain frankfurters and cook in butter, turning to brown on all sides. Place sauerkraut on chop plate; make well in center. Put hot applesauce in well. Lay frankfurters around ring of kraut. YIELD: 4 servings.

*Frankfurters are packed 6—12 to the can, depending upon can size and brand.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Millie Easton, Edmond, Okla.: I remember, when we noticed any young man calling on his best young lady friend as often as once a week, the neighbors would whisper behind their fans and say, "They surely will be marrying very soon."

From Donald Riesman, Atlanta, Ga.: I remember when mother did the family washing in a wooden tub with a zinc washboard.

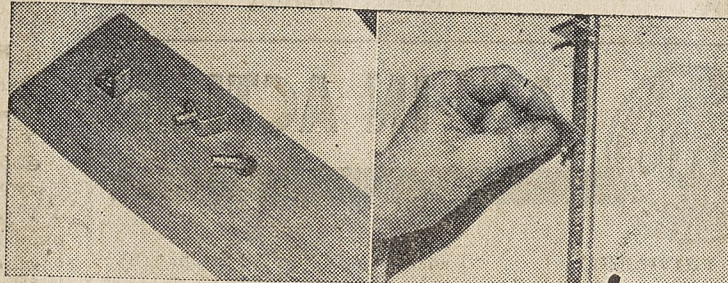

From Mrs. T. S. McSwain, Wetumpka, Ala.: I remember taking some eggs to the store for my mother. I got the things she went for with the eggs and had a dozen left over—which were worth 15 cents. With them I traded for three yards of cloth for a dress for me.

From the Old Cuss, Chicago: I remember when politicians restricted their kissing to babies of the cradle age. But now, there's no limit to whom and what a politician will kiss for a vote or two. Just the other day, I saw a picture of Bernard Baruch getting his face patted by a sweet young thing, who'd been out of the cradle for a date or two, I'll bet. He's taking a tip from Alben Barkley. I'm getting up in years, so pretty soon, I can act like Baruch and Barkley without getting my face slapped. Then I won't be remembering much, old timers!

From Mrs. Stella Casady, Harve, Mont.: I remember when I started to school in western Nebraska in 1884 in a sod school house with a dirt floor. We had charm string of buttons.

New Gadgets Make the Job Of Building Shelves Easy

A number of devices now on the market have made shelf-building easy. The four below were pictured in Home Modernizing magazine, along with the suggestion that a good grade of one-inch pine be used for the most satisfactory shelves.

Small metal clips with attached dowels are fine for light loads. Dowels fit into holes drilled in the uprights at the end of the shelves. Shelves rest on the clips.

Matching metal strips and clips like these will carry heavy loads. Strips are screwed to the uprights supporting the shelf and clips fit into them at any point.

This bracket is similar to the clips shown above, in that it fits anywhere on a metal strip. In this case, however, strips are screwed to wall or back of shelf unit. Only two are needed.

There are a number of brackets available for erecting single shelves. These are attached to the wall and the shelves rest on them, with no additional support being necessary.

GOOD NEWS FOR Homemakers

Anne Marshall

"PRECIOUS" IS THE WORD FOR REFRIGERATORS, especially in warm weather.

Treat your refrigerator right and it will perform like magic for you. Follow these tips to make the best use of this helpful piece of equipment:

1. To store meat, remove grocer's wrappings and wrap it loosely in waxed paper. Place in coldest part of refrigerator, near freezing unit. This helps keep it in good condition.
2. Clean vegetables and fruits before putting in refrigerator. This helps to keep them in best condition and to keep the refrigerator clean.
3. Store leftovers and liquids in covered containers. This will help prevent drying of foods. And frost will not accumulate as fast on freezing unit.
4. Keep a supply of plastic bags on hand for storing many items. Handy for bread, lettuce and other vegetables, and cheese.

REFRESHING COLD FOODS from the refrigerator are most welcome during warm weather. Cheer your family with cold gelatin salads often. Here's one that simply requires a can of tomato soup, gelatin, cottage cheese and onion. A joy to taste.

| 1 can (1½ cups) condensed tomato soup | 1 cup creamy cottage cheese or mayonnaise |

Soften gelatin in cold water. Heat soup; mix in softened gelatin and grated onion. Pour into 1 large or 4 individual molds that have been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce. Serve with a top-knot of cottage cheese and/or mayonnaise. 4 servings.

Your Home

By Frances Ainsworth

Did you know that our favorite feathered friends can transmit certain dangerous diseases to us? I was simply amazed to learn from my doctor that parrots, parakeets and even the cheerful little canaries that we enjoy so much as household pets can be the cause of serious illness to yourself and members of your family.

One of these diseases is called "psittacosis," caused by a virus that lives chiefly in parrots. When transmitted to a human, it may be really dangerous, even fatal. It affects all ages and sexes, so I know you'll want to make sure that your youngsters are protected from it.

It's a good idea to keep a close check on your bird pets—watching for loss of appetite, ruffled feathers, sleepiness, occasional shivering or convulsions. These may indicate the disease and should be investigated at once. No one wants to risk an illness for a member of the family, even if the pet is a favorite!

LAW IN ACTION

PRIVILEGE

In a trial the judge decides what evidence can be heard. He applies rules of evidence so that truth—relevant truth—may come out in court to decide guilt or innocence, liability or not.

But to protect the parties in the law suit and the public, there are times when you may not have to testify. This, lawyers call privilege.

All evidence should be relevant to a legal issue in court. But some kinds of relevant facts, because of public policy, may not be admitted in court.

The court cannot make you testify against yourself. This is written into our Bill of Rights as a protection against tyrants and torture. The prosecutor must present enough facts to convict you. If he cannot, he cannot make you give evidence against yourself.

Besides, each man must get his day in court. To do so, he needs someone he can tell his secrets to, without fear that they will come out later on to hurt him.

So, no court can make your lawyer, without your consent, tell what you have properly given him in confidence. Unless you have waived the confidential communication privilege, he cannot be made to tell your secrets. No court would let him do so.

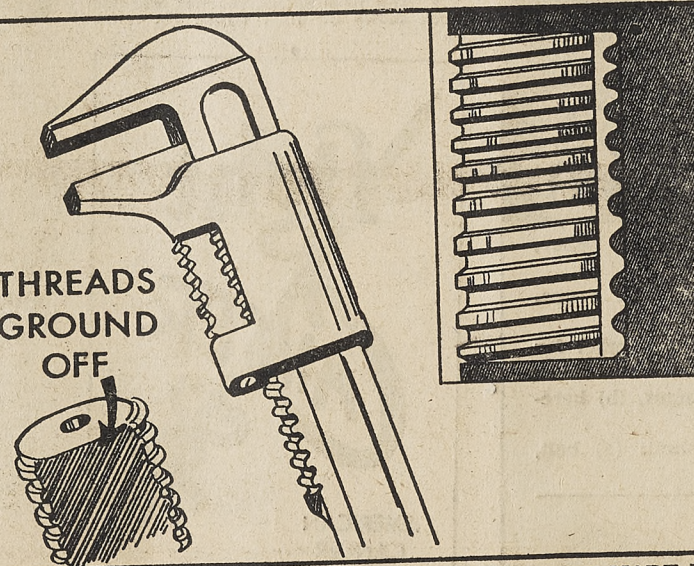

Only rarely can a man or wife testify in a criminal case involving each other. The court holds that the confidences which pass between a man and wife are such that no court can ask for them without grave danger to public welfare.

A priest cannot tell what came out in the confession. Except rarely, can you put gossip or hearsay in evidence. As a rule, hearsay's truth rests on a third person, not present in court for cross-examination. So you cannot test the truth and relevancy of gossip or hearsay.

NOTE: The State Bar of California offers this column for your information so that you may know more about how to act under our laws.

How Do You Use Power?
Lesson: 1 Kings 1: 38-40; 3: 5-9; 8: 27-30.

Golden Text: Proverbs 3: 5-6.

AFTER the death of David, the young Solomon, who had been named by David, under the influence of Bathsheba, Benaiah, and Nathan, to succeed himself on the throne, was made king of Israel, with great pomp and ceremony. When he was anointed king, all the people shouted: "Long live king Solomon."

Soon thereafter, when Solomon went to worship at Gibeon, he earnestly sought divine help. God appeared unto him and asked what his request would be. Solomon asked for wisdom, for an understanding heart, that he might govern his people well. Hence arose the statement that Solomon was the wisest man who had ever lived, a statement that was amply verified in some of the decisions that he made. This fame of Solomon went abroad, so that the queen of Sheba "came from the uttermost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon."

That Solomon grew in his spiritual perceptions was shown in his prayer at the dedication of the temple, a prayer in which he recognized the might and omnipresence of God, but he rejoiced that God would condescend to come into the temple, to write his name there, and to hear his people in their needs.

Solomon thus, in his early life as king, was an example of the right use of power. Let us learn to use, by the help of God, every gift He makes to us, for his glory.

Timely Tips

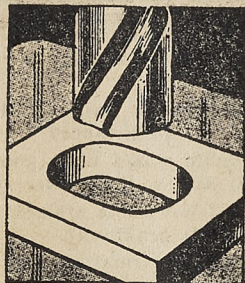

Christmas is for the children, they say, and certainly no one who has watched the youngsters' eyes gleam with joy on Christmas morn will deny this. But the child who also learns the true Christmas spirit of giving gains the greatest gift of all.

To impress the Christmas spirit upon your youngsters, let them become a part of the preparations. They can make Christmas cards for their own friends simply, with stickers or art cut from cards from previous years. Tree ornaments, too, can be fun in the making. As a beginning, let them make cut-outs from cards of yesteryears or from scraps of Christmas wrapping paper, so pretty when tied to the tree with colorful string. Angels and comets, more elaborate, are for the child with artistic taste.

SUNDOWN ON THE PACIFIC SHORE

A novel about the Great West

BY RENAN PREVOST

PREFACE

All thru the West there are Ghost Towns. Mostly in the region of the gold mines, of the wild, reckless days of 1849 and after. There are ruins of buildings and etc., which have a story, of the days, of glory and easy wealth for some men; and disappointment and tragic passing for other men.

About every city there are happenings of the past which are not always recorded; some men leave great names for their accomplishments, and land marks are named after them such as Parks, Streets and Schools. Also there are men, the workers who have "done the work" who are usually forgotten, with their passing on from this world. This story is about these men of great courage, supreme courage. Many of them arrived here without funds, and so gainful employment was necessary and that was work—hard work. Work not in line with their skill in a trade or profession.

Ghost towns have their story. So stories exist about buildings, water works, factories, railroads and other endeavors concerned with the earning of a livelihood. These stories become interesting, because they portray a life during the days of the past, almost forgotten. Great buildings or public utilities are usually known by the name of the man or corporation which caused the construction. Very seldom is any credit given to an architect, or the men who actually did the work. These were the men—"the brains" who were responsible for the erection of the structure or etc. And so this novel is about those "brains" and how they came West and what their life was like.

There are certain things effecting the economic welfare of men, which cause them to migrate. Generally it is promise of better living conditions or opportunities of easy attainment of wealth, thru land booms, new agricultural crops such as rare fruits, a better livable climate, as an aid to regain health; or as in the case of the colonization of this great country—an escape from persecution or oppression.

Men have been traveling to the West for generations, so we travel West with our characters, starting in 1880.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

The Livery Stable Owner.

James Twitcher in the Real Estate Business.

Jerry and the Land for Growing Lemons.

PART ONE

"O. K., here is your graduation pin," then went another departure of tobacco juice that was necessary before the kind old man could laugh, and laugh he did. That story went the rounds of the Livery Stable; the huge safety pin was the coat lapel ornament until after graduation. Money there was for prunes, but not one cent for pins—class pins.

"Well, thanks, Mr. Jones. Guess I'll go and see Tom. I got an idea to tell him," and the boy was happy. Happy as boys can be when all is well with the boyhood life. When we are all grown men; sometimes the recollection of a happy boyhood is a satisfaction.

"Hello, Tom. Have some prunes," he offered.

"Sure, I'll have one."

"Listen, I got an idea. Now these prunes are good. I like them, and I am going to eat mine before I get to the Hospital; other folks only eat them in the Hospital."

"Is that the idea?"

"No. Here it is. These prunes are good, but suppose they were flavored, say some strawberry, some lemon, some orange, some raspberry; but I think the strawberry flavored prunes would be something," suggested Prunes.

"Well, I don't know. Guess I'll have to think that thing over. Strawberry flavored prunes?" repeated Tom.

"Sure. Strawberry flavored prunes, and they could be put up in five cent packages and sold like candy."

"Well, I don't know. Guess I will have to give that a good think. How about going for a swim at Kyles?"

"No, I don't have the price. I spent it for prunes."

"I don't have the price either, but let us go after awhile anyhow," suggested Tom.

"Kyles Plunge—and bath house was located at the foot of Fifth Street. Many a boy could go there and these kindly people, whose love for boys was beyond comparison, often allowed the boys to swim anyhow, when they did not have the price. No admission was charged for entering the gallery and just watching. But just watching sometimes would end in being allowed to swim for free, especially on days of few people in the plunge.

"Let's wait a while. I want to get the engine to run. I got a quart of gasoline, and I want to try it again."

"What are you going to be when you grow up, Tom?"

"A auto mechanic," was the answer.

"Just then Grandpa came in to see the boys.

"A auto mechanic, so that be your plans?" queried Grandpa.

"I hope so," replied Tom.

"Well, Son, I am not so sure these contraptions is going to be so good."

"Why?"

"Well, I think that cars that run on steam would be more satisfactory. Steam power is more powerful; it is quiet, take that Stanley Steamer. Don't you notice how nice it runs?"

"Sure, I've been in one of them; but maybe they can explode, too," replied Tom.

"Sure, most anything can explode if it gets hot enough. But steam power seems to me to be better," allowed Grandpa.

"How about the water supply? How far can you travel before the water is used up, or will the driver have to stop at each horse watering trough in each town for water? Take the gasoline auto of tomorrow. It will run to, say Los Angeles on ten gallons of gas; it all can be in the gas tank, or maybe big enough tank to hold enough for a round trip. Can that be possible with a Steamer?" asked Tom.

"It could be possible to carry enough water on a Steamer for a round trip," allowed Grandpa.

"How much water would that be?" asked Tom.

"I don't know—do you?"

"No, but I am not interested in Steamers," said Tom.

"Say, Tom, that gasser won't run, let's go to Kyles," urged Prunes.

"Aw, I don't have the price," answered Tom.

"Say, Prunes," asked Grandpa, "Don't you eat candy, ever? Is it always prunes?"

"Sure, I like prunes, they are good, Grandpa would you listen to me?"

"Sure."

"Well, now that tobacco which you smoke and chew, does it do your body any good; real good? If so, why do you have rheumatism in your feet?"

"Tobacco don't hurt me."

"Then why do you have rheumatism?"

"Just getting old," answered Grandpa.

"Grandpa, would you try a experiment—say for one month?" asked Prunes.

"Well, maybe."

"The tobacco money could be used to buy prunes. Don't chew them, just let them melt in your mouth like hard candy or you could just suppose it was a chew of tobacco, but swallow the juice. Maybe your rheumatism would go away," asked Prunes.

"Now that don't make sense, naw."

"It could not hurt you any, Grandpa. Please try it."

"Naw, foolish talk, but here is a quarter. You boys go to Kyles and have a swim," said Grandpa, who was not related to either of the boys, but he was called Grandpa out of respect to his age.

"Chug, chug and chug." That was the only noise at the stable, and the whinnies of the horses. Such a melody.

That place of horses, old buggies, wagons, and the usual manure piles with the flies, stable hands and Charlie, a happy-go-lucky chap.

Charlie's boy, Tom, was out back of the stable, tinkering with a gas buggy. He could make the engine run, but that was all. The running gear was broken and so traveling on the street was not possible. All to the satisfaction of everybody, except Tom. With his few hard earned nickels he bought gasoline. However, his father knew the gas-buggy had possibilities, maybe some day the boy might have a chance to work on a better gas-buggy. Well, that might be possible, and then it might not. Who could tell?

"Whoa," said the Negro to the bay mare.

It was a two-seated buggy; Madam Fournier in the rear seat. "Good morning," she extended to Charlie, who was so surprised that he almost swallowed his chew of tobacco. However, he retracted it, extracted the juice, which was sent whistling to the usual resting place, landed plop, swish, he made a move to remove his hat, but decided not to.

"Yes, what can I do for you?" he asked.

"A friend of yours told me that you knew someone here who could repair my gas-buggy. I am Madam Fournier's old gas-buggy, and I will pay well for the work. Where is the mechanic?" answered Madam Fournier.

"Well, Lady, I don't know of any mechanic, but my boy, Tom, can make them run, but he is just a boy, and I don't want him at your place."

"Don't worry, Pa. I can see your point," she answered.

"But, tell you what. If you will send the 'gallant vehicle here I will consent to my boy working on it," answered Charlie.

"Sure, where is the boy?"

"Hey, Tom, come here," Charlie hollered.

Tom came. Sure, he could work on the gas-buggy. He had enough grease on him to lubricate three gas-buggies.

"Tom, this woman wants to know if you can make Stayson's old gas-buggy run."

"Yes, I think I can. I looked it over a long time ago, and when Stayson was away on vacation I had a good look," answered the boy.

"Son," said Madam Fournier, "if you can make it run I will pay you well. Suppose I send it down here. Charlie, send up a team and driver to haul it here," she said.

"You work on it, Tom, I want to ride in that thing."

Tom was so surprised that he was speechless. His father consented, and so that was a deal.

"Gid dap," exclaimed the startled Negro, and the road dust marked the route of the Madam homeward bound.

"Well, I be jiggered, that thar woman has plenty of grit," extended the manure man—he had charge of it, known as Manure Pete.

"Sure, and not bad looking, either," answered Charlie, as Tom was leaving to go to the rear again to his "chug-chug."

"Man, oh man! What a woman, and can she talk, and what a shape." Manure Pete whistled, and the horses whinnied their agreeing answer.

"Oh, hello, Pops, how are you today?" asked Mr. Jones of an old man, who came to the Livery Stable to pass the time away. He was past ninety wears old, and surely knew New Town. He used to say "came here before the town."

"Any news today?" someone asked.

"I have a story. Ever hear of the splendid, modern features of the new Court House?"

"No, what are they?"

"Well, in the old days the town jail was at Old Town, and it was an iron cage; jail in a cage, if you please. Now, we have a modern jail. It is in the basement of the Court House. Yes, that building was the place of a grand ball at the dedication in Seventy-two. The court rooms were ball rooms upstairs and a jail, waiting for occupants in the basement."

"Don't you know anything more pleasant than jail stories?" some one asked.

"Yes, I do. There is the marriage license bureau. Where young people full of love and with ambition go to get the license for marriage. They are all so happy and joyful when getting that license. Sometimes I wonder how many end in happiness; how many end in divorce in the Superior Court? Where many a life's drama is told. That building, through its halls of justice, where eminent lawyers and politicians have hollered arguments. There is that building where every experience in human life is exposed. There is the exposition citidal of our civilization, laws for every thing. I was at the grand ball in Seventy-two. How different it was that night. The men in their long-tail coats and the women in fancy dress and slippers. All had high hearts and spirits during the strains of Grand March Militaire, in the District Court Room. Many a man and woman tripped the 'light fantastic' that night.

"Yet today life drama is 'on stage most every day.' Happy hearts go there for the marriage license. The divorce courts also hold session, and the criminal receives sentence. Heart sickness for many. Did you ever just sit there and study the facial expressions of those people who enter those huge doors?"

2nd ANNUAL PRESENTATION

SERAFINA

THE PLAY BY JEROME GERARD; MUSIC BY RENAN PREVOST

with additional numbers by
H. Adair Thomas

LOVE - INTRIGUE - COMEDY

A first rate tourist attraction must be original, entertaining, enjoyable and it must be seen only in one place. Tourists travel the world over to see unusual attractions. "Serafina" and "Stars in the West" can be annual attractions for San Diego. There has never been anything offered in San Diego, to compare with the possibilities of these Historical Operettas, excepting, the two great Expositions - 1915 and 1935, in our wonderful Balboa Park.

Why we offer these Operettas - The presentation of stage shows and etc., which have been produced for years, elsewhere, does not create prime tourist attractions of merit, for San Diego. Because as a rule tourists do not travel far to see stage shows, which can be seen at home or nearby. Or to hear music which is regularly used on the radio or on records for home playing. All of which, although, said shows and music are acceptable for amusement; but, they are in reality "common stuff" and seldom attract the well informed and enlightened tourist, seeking the unusual.

A tourist attraction of supreme merit is the Historical Operetta. And produced annually in a Civic Theatre located amidst the fine buildings of Balboa Park, which is world famous and the center of culture of San Diego. We have the Russ Auditorium which will suffice until a Civic Theatre can be provided. We have the talent and the most enjoyable operetta - "SERAFINA"

These Operettas are new, with appeal unlike the over-played stage presentations of the past years. So, We offer these original Operettas, they can be tourist attractions unsurpassed; because they have not been produced elsewhere, most of the music has not been published, or offered for public use. Here are two historical Operettas, in all that it implies, about our San Diego.

The historical facts presented in the Operettas are such as has never heretofore been presented. Participation is available for Patrons and Sponsors send communications to -
